Topic: Why Is It So Hard to Make Friends Today? Thinking Prompts: Many young people today feel that it's becoming harder to form genuine friendships in the age of the internet, where screen-based interactions often replace face-to-face conversations. But is the internet really to blame for this growing sense of loneliness? After all, even when students are in the same classroom, many choose to stay silent and focus on themselves rather than reach out to others for a heart-to-heart talk. Do they really prefer to be alone? What holds them back from socializing with others? These are questions worth thinking deeply about. Task: Write an essay of about 300 to 500 words to express your opinion on what makes it difficult for people to build friendships these days. Support your ideas with clear reasons and specific examples. Your essay will be evaluated based on four criteria: content (35%), organization (30%), grammar (20%), and diction (15%).
